Washington, DC - Evelyn Brooks Designs is celebrating its ten years making beautiful jewelry pieces inspired by her Peruvian heritage, following the latest trends while supporting different social responsible projects.

Evelyn Brooks, is a Peruvian immigrant who arrived to the United States in early 2003.

Bryan & Evelyn Brooks launched Evelyn Brooks Designs in 2004, since then entrepreneur jewelry designer Evelyn Brooks has seen significant growth, and has been able to remain in business even during recession time. Her latest collection made with Peruvian huayruro (why-ee-ru-ro) seeds, silver and gold; have caught the attention of customers around the world while proudly sharing the beauty of her home country Peru through her beautiful and stylish designs for men, women and even kids.

"It is been an amazing journey with lots of ups & downs, I have grown so much as a jewelry designer and now mompreneur. What advice would you give to new and upcoming entrepreneurs? Work hard, be organized, stay focused, prioritize and most importantly by being very creative in all moments. I hope to be a role model for other immigrant women who come to this country with a vision to live the American dream" said Evelyn Brooks.

Evelyn Brooks Designs work is now sold in Japan, Canada, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, and the most prestigious galleries and boutiques in the United States, including the Harvard Museum of Natural History, The Museum of Art in Design in New York, and the Ritz Carlton in St. Thomas to name a few.

Her work has recently been featured in USA TODAY publications such as Modern Woman Magazine, Hispanic Living Magazine, and internationally in Vogue UK. Without a doubt, Evelyn's work is admired worldwide and has been recognized with many awards such as Empowered Women International, Latina Style Magazine, Fashion Capital Awards, Peruvian Successful Woman given by the Embassy of Peru in Washington DC.

Through her jewelry designs and different partnerships with local and national non-profits organizations, the company has been able to help different social responsible programs and has closely worked with Fashion Fights Poverty, National Hispana Leadership Institute, DC Fashion Foundation, The Green Cup Polo, Latinas Leading Tomorrow, The National Association of Hispanic MBA's, and The Red Campaign among others.

Evelyn shared her knowledge teaching "Jewelry Design a Creative and Lucrative Experience" at the Montgomery College in Maryland. She has also work with the Peruvian government and the PROMPERU agency, sharing her business entrepreneurship skills to inspire and motivate artisans in Peru who are looking to break into the American market. Lately she has shared innovative ideas on how to create jewelry from home in a special segment of Buenos Dias DC, the most watch morning show of Univision Washington DC.

What is next? We are planning to open our 1st retail space and my designs will soon be sold at the Smithsonian Museums in Washington DC & New York, more stores worldwide will also carry my jewelry collection, says Evelyn Brooks
